Dear Susan:

When we first met, you told me about your sister and about her being sick. You also told me about others in your family/extended family and them being sick. I knew at the time this was important to you and I grew to know about these things and what and how they affected your family and you. I will never totally understand what your family has gone through or how these things affected each member of your family. I could only love you as you were and who you were and empathize your feelings as true and authentic.

A year ago, I was in a tailspin due to actions to destroy me at all costs by people who are hell bent to cover up what they have done and what they will do. These people have done their best to damage every aspect of my life and affect everyone around me – including you and Joel. They knew better, but did so anyway because of the type of people they are.

I have fought them and now am in the mist of dealing with the last of these actions with the very people who set up the events of 2010, their efforts to cover up their actions and of others with a SF95. These problems cut to the core, damaged and hurt both of us.

You can't control people. However, there are those who believe that they can control others and these are the people I have had to deal with. They have done their best to upset everyone and anything, to regain that control at all costs – even if it means damaging me at all costs and everyone that I love so dear to me.

One year ago, you continued to say that it my choice – but in the end you pleaded with me that you did not want to be alone and did not want me to go through with it. I ended not going through with things as a direct result of you. But I still suffered at that time. Things continued however to disintegrate between us, to the path we are on now.

I have been very ill. Katz has noted that I am very damaged and need a good 2 years of counseling. Then I need to be reviewed again. I have also been physically ill having infections in my lungs, nose and ear to which I had to go to the doctor twice for – I have not been this bad since being a child. I have been worn down to nothing.

When you were in college, some people you told me about were chasing you and interfering with your life at college. This affected you and your final marks were much lower than they should have been. You went home for a while in fact. Years later, you would come to regret that you did not speak up about your finals at the time and so, you were left with a 2:2 – something totally beneath you. You would later contact the college and they would tell you that it was too late.

People went out of their way to kill me in 2002. To destroy every aspect of my life and I too was left stunned for many months, shut off from the world and life. It was only then, that when I did not respond to my mother after months, that she became worried and stepped in. I was hurting so much in the summer of 2002 that I wanted to hang myself to end the pain I felt – the feelings of being ashamed by all that had happened.

The bright spot of my life in these last years was my wedding and marriage you and then having Joel with you. I didn't know what to think, but I had you and him and that is all that mattered to me.

I love you and I still love you. But I can only do so much and I can only take so much. I disagree with divorce and what you are doing. I hate it and I hurt deep inside as a result, which is likely why I have been physically ill as well as so deeply hurting inside. Because deep down I don't want this, but I feel very much at your mercy at this point, since you have invoked this upon the marriage, Joel and me.

I feel threaten by it. I feel uneasy by it. I feel a lost of words by it. I told Dale to write what he did to you because I cannot cause you to be married to me and because they see the pain it is causing me inside. I did not want to be like your grandmother and grandfather and go years upon years in a state of some flux – I couldn't do that emotionally; I cannot wall things out inside my life. It digs at me very deeply Susan and hurts inside very deeply what is going on and what you are doing. It is a very personal, deep, life rejection.

Dale and Carol realize that they will never see Joel. This actually bothers both of them. I know this cuts deep with Carol. Photos and videos can only go so far. Now being a parent, I understand this in a way I never did or would have before. Cindy, Rob and their kids – all wish they had known you and Joel. But all that is lost.

I cannot cause you to love me or be faithful in the marriage covenant. It is a choice. We made a choice to enter into the marriage covenant and to have Joel. However, I and everyone else has to accept the choices that you are making to end the marriage – just as you left me with the choice to end my life or not. Just as you and Joel would be left to pick up the pieces with my death, me and everyone else are left with you redefining the relationship, as you are demanding in your court action and see fit.

I cannot stop you. I can oppose it, but I cannot cause you to be married to me and that means that you will get your wish, you will divorce me and everyone will have to accept what you are demanding in your court action.

Your voice on the phone still echoes in my mind. It haunts me because I know what it is like to not want to be alone and left by myself. I have deep problems with being abandoned, which date all the way to when I was a little boy. I can plead with you one last time to not do this. I have thought of going unannounced to the UK to show up and find you and Joel to plead in person, but in the end, I fear that you would simply reject me even further and call the police on me to have me removed.

I don't like what you are doing at all, and I don't want it. But I have learned over the years, I have to let people make their choices, even choices I disagree with. But even if I fight you, your UK laws will grant the divorce anyway. In the end, you will get what you want, regardless of anything I say or do – even if in a short time I am able to resolve things once and for all.

I need you to not do this. I need you and Joel and I don't want anyone else – I never wanted anyone else. No one can replace or hold a candle to what you (and Joel) mean to me.

I am begging you not to do this.

Randy
